MISCELLANEOUS READING.

COMMUNICATED. TO LARRY LEE. The last good-bye is spoken, The parting words are said, Thou turnest from us sadly, For life's changes thou hast read; Hast read them in the dying leaves And in the fading flowers, Hast read them in man's blighted hopes,

And in his failing powers. Thou knowest that the partings In this changing world may be For shorter or for longer Than the human eye can see; Its meetings may be seldom, They may be glad or no— For the lot of man is changing In this weary world below.

They may be happy meetings With every joy be blest-They may be such as satisfy And set the heart at rest-And so, my brother's friend, may thine When thou returnest be, May thy trail bark securely ride Over a waveless sea.

Thou goest to a southern land-Let not its soft winds woo, Thy soul into forgetfulness Of friends whose love is true, Of friends who in thy childhood Thy varying pleasures shared, And in life's deeper interests Not less for thee have cared. Farewell, I'll not beguile thee,

Into remembrance sad. Of the many joys and sorrows, That in this world thou'st had; But in parting I would bless thee, With a blessing from above, Praying thy every steps might know A guiding Father's love. Clarke County, Va., November 16th, 1858. SUNDAY SCHOOLS AND SABBATH BREAKERS. -Hon. Perry E. Brocchus, who has for a number of years presided as judge of a

United States Court, stated, in an address recently delivered at a Sabbath-school cele-bration at Falls Church, Fairfax County, Va., that in the numerous convictions for crime before him, from the lowest to the highest grade of offences against the law of the land, with but a single exception, not one of the convicts had been the subject of Sabbath School instruction; and the exception was the melancholy case of a young man who, sccerding to his own confession, instead of attend ing the Sabbath school in obedience to the command of pious parents, was in the habit of playing trusht therefrom, and with a num ber of vicious companions spending the Sabbath morning in an adjacent graveyard, playing cards upon the tombetones. Filial dis-obedience and desecration of God's boly day led him, step by step, to the door of the penitentiary, and having there served a term of ignominious punishment, he enlisted under an assumed name in the army of the United States, and ultimately committed the crime of murder, which he expiated on the gallows and, an exile from home and friends, was consigned to a dishonored grave.

What a sad and impressive lesson does such testimony teach those who are inclined to neglect the Sabbath school and profane the Sabbath day! - Christian Advocate.
